BEYOND MEDICINE

The baby boomers turned 50 in 1995. In the U.S. alone, there will be 75 million people over the age of 50. Many in this group will face health needs that they have not dealt with before and will seek answers. As the population ages, and the budgets grow tighter for health care, it is getting harder for the health care system to meet the expectations of the consumer. In a world of increasing self-awareness and personal devotion to one's own health, people around the globe are opening their minds to more alternative forms of medicine and therapy. In a 39-part documentary series, Beyond Medicine provides a journey into the world of people whose lives have been enriched, changed and perhaps, saved by the growing techniques and practices of a new medical phenomenon.
