H² Hilarious History

Who said History can't be funny? H²-Hilarious History takes some of the most outrageous historical moments captured on film and mixes them with light-hearted comedy. And here's the twist – throughout the show we reveal fun facts and fascinating trivia about the people and events you've just seen.

H²-Hilarious History opens a time capsule of amazing footage from the UCLA Film and Television archive, the second largest archive in the United States, and the largest university-based moving image archive in the world. The footage is brought to life by our pal H² and his split personalities Hilarious and History. The Hilarious side of his personality tells the jokes and the History side tells the facts.

Watch H²-Hilarious History to see some of the funniest moments captured on film!

Footage that you have to see to believe - great for viewers of all ages.

Galen Gough was the world's strongest man, so it was no surprise that his son Wally was the world's strongest baby and was often referred to as "Little Hercules".

In the 1920's, there were no federal aviation regulations, so for as little as $200 you could buy a plane and perform daring stunts!
